

SALCOMBE is a small seaport town and civil parish, formed in 1804 under section 1, sub-section 3, of the Local Government Act, 1894, from the parish of Malborough; it is about 5 miles south from Kingsbridge, in the Totnes division of the county, Coleridge hundred, Starborough and Coleridge petty sessional division, Kingsbridge union and county court district, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The town is built on the margin of and facing the harbour, the entrance to which lies between Prawle Point and Bolt Head. Salcombe is a port, and has its own registration of shipping and a coastguard station. The harbour, which is free, is capable of receiving vessels of 400 tons, and affords a convenient and safe retreat in any weather, and vessels may ride in perfect security under the windows of the houses. The sea fishing is excellent and produces scallop, as well as crabs and lobsters in large quantities, and bass, mullet, pollock and mackerel. The climate of this district is very mild; the American aloe blooms in the open air, and oranges, lemons and citrons reach a state of ripe perfection, and this circumstance, combined with the beauty of the surrounding scenery, has of late brought it into favour as a watering-place. The sands afford safe and pleasant sea-bathing; rabbit and wild fowl shooting can be enjoyed in the immediate neighbourhood. Gas works were erected in 1866 at Shadycombe. A steamer plies from Kingsbridge to Salcombe daily.

The town is governed by an Urban District Council of 9 members, formed under the provisions of the Local Government Act, 1894 (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), which takes the place of a Local Board established in 1880. The ecclesiastical parish was formed Nov. 12, 1844. The church of the Holy Trinity, erected in 1843, at a cost of over £2,600, is an edifice of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and a western tower containing a clock and one bell; the stained east window is a memorial to the 11th Earl of Devon P.C., D.C.L. d. 18 Nov. 1888; there are other stained memorial windows to the sons of Major-Gen. Birdwood; Sarah, widow of John Fitzroy (de Courcy), 31st Baron Kingsale, d. 5 May, 1893; the Hon. Mrs. Stretton; Major E. H. Foster; and the four sons of Major W. de C. Stretton, who were killed in the Great War, 1914-18: the pulpit is carved: a new chancel, with side chapel, vestries and organ loft were added in 1889, at a cost of £1,900: the chancel gates are in memory of the Misses C. and T. Turner: a chancel screen of wrought iron and a beautiful tablet of bronze were erected in 1920 as a memorial to the Salcombe men who fell in the Great War, 1914-18: there are 470 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the beginning of the 19th century. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £400, with residence, in the gift of Keble College, Oxford, and held since 1902 by the Rev. John Algernon Sidgwick M.A. of Clare College, Cambridge. The Catholic Apostolic Church, in Fore street, consists of a large room over a store, arranged as a nave and chancel; it has been redecorated and handsomely refitted, and has 120 sittings. The Wesleyan chapel, in Island street, was erected in 1849; side galleries and a music gallery have been added, and the interior has been re-decorated and re-seated throughout.

and will seat 600 persons. The Baptist chapel, in Courtenay park, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, erected in 1867, at a cost of £1,100, and affords 300 sittings. The Brethren's chapel, in Fore street, erected in 1862, will seat 100 persons. The Cemetery of about 2 acres, with a lodge containing a waiting room and mortuary, was formed in 1879 at a cost of £800; it is under the control of the Urban District Council. The Marine hotel consists of the house and grounds formerly the property and residence of the late Lord Kingsale, and is charmingly situated on the banks of the estuary, commanding a full view of the Bolt Head and the English Channel. In 1869, R. Durant esq. of Sharpham, Totnes, presented Salcombe with a life-boat, called "The Rescue," and gear, at a cost of £700, and a boat-house was built by public subscription on the south sands; this boat was replaced in 1888 by the "Lesty," provided from a bequest by the late Mrs. Lesty, and this in its turn was replaced by the "William and Emma," bequeathed by the late Mrs. E. E. Cox in 1904; this boat was wrecked on the 27th Oct. 1916, when thirteen out of fifteen of the crew were drowned or killed by being dashed against the rocks on the bar; the present boat is named "Sarah Anne Holden"; another life-boat is stationed at Hope Cove on this coast, in Malborough parish. The McIlwraith Free Library was presented to the town by Andrew McIlwraith esq. in 1921; it is well supplied with daily and weekly papers and magazines, and is open to visitors; the reference and circulating library contains about 1,500 volumes; the library is in part a memorial to the men of Salcombe who died in the Great War, 1914-18, and to those who lost their lives in the life-boat disaster, 1916; it is supported by the trustees of Cliff House and by donations. The Council Hall, in Market street, erected in 1893, contains a large assembly room, seating 250 persons, and reading and recreation rooms. At Hope Cove, about 4 miles west, the "St. Peter the Great," one of the ships of the Spanish Armada, was wrecked. Salcombe Castle, erected by Henry VIII. as a defence to the ports on this part of the coast, occupies a strong position on a peninsular rock at the entrance of the harbour; in 1643 it was strengthened and garrisoned for the king by Sir Edmund Fortescue of Fallapit, who named it "Fort Charles"; in 1645 it was besieged by the Parliamentary forces, under Col. Weldon, for four months, and surrendered on honourable terms on 7th May. E. M. Collins esq. is lord of the manor. Miss Ilbert, the trustees of the late C. Newton-Robinson esq. George Adams esq. and the South Devon Land Co. Limited are chief landowners. The area of the civil parish and Urban District is 1,181 acres of land and 134 of foreshore; rateable value, £9,920; the population of the civil parish and Urban District in 1911 was 2,032 and in 1921, 2,201; the population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 2,007.

By Local Government Board Order, No. 34,396, April 1st, 1896, part of Malborough civil parish was annexed to Salcombe.

SHADYCOMBE and BATSON are hamlets.
